Jackson County Case Study

A RECENT SUCCESS

Adco Products consolidated their Evansville, Indiana, site into their Leoni Township location near Jackson, Michigan, in 2010 to allow for future business growth, primarily focused in the commercial roofing and solar markets.

COMPANY PROFILE

ADCO Products, Inc.

4401 Page Avenue, Leoni Township, Jackson, Michigan

FINANCIAL AND EMPLOYMENT IMPACT

The $16.2 Million in investments created 212 new jobs and retained 158 jobs. The investment included site infrastructure improvements related to the relocation of the equipment from Evansville, new shipping docks and machinery/equipment to position ADCO to establish a leadership position in the solar and commercial roofing markets. Additional improvements in 2011 included a warehouse expansion, and adding seating capacity for new employees. The personal property investments included manufacturing equipment, laboratory and testing equipment and other IT and safety related capital investments.

INDUSTRY IMPACT

ADCO, the wholly-owned North American operating subsidiary of ADCO Global, has evolved its business toward the manufacturing of novel technologies that outperform today's legacy adhesives and sealants. Investing in new technologies, ADCO is focused on the long-term needs of customers. Now more than ever, makers of sophisticated solar panels, 'green' construction products, commercial roofing products and transportation products specify ADCO branded offerings. You can find ADCO sealants, adhesives and tapes on some of the world's most complex projects, from the Freedom Tower in New York City, to the windmills of America and beyond.

IMAGINE – ENGINEER - BUILD

ADCO is investing in the growth markets of the future. With an understanding that the future is all about sustainability, the management team has directed the majority of its R&D, sales and technical services investments toward the growth sectors of the global economy, that is to say, in the markets that require high performing green solutions.

DELIVER

Four business units within ADCO, Roofing Products, Solar, Transportation and Construction, hold responsibility for driving the development of ADCO branded products that offer customers better options in areas like 'lightweighting', innovative structural bonding, energy efficiency and insulating.
